At least according to my doctor.

"PHEN's Annual Father's Day Rally has proven to be an effective education and awareness outreach initiative for African American families who are the ones most impacted by prostate cancer.

The laxative idea, by the way, is not a good one - the change of food/cold air may make you need to 'go' more urgently anyway.

It's a tremendously good feeling to notice actual growth in your psyche, to see yourself moving forward and leaving more and more of the bullshit behind.
