it was a situation that would set him apart from the rest of humanity, consigning him to live with other immortals, never to mingle with the general human population.